Feedback from those we've helped and supporters

"I am deeply thankful for the support I received from STARRS during one of the most difficult times of my life. After being removed from a service academy for refusing the COVID-19 vaccine on religious grounds, I found myself in need of guidance and encouragement. The team at STARRS stepped in when I needed it most, offering both advocacy and genuine care.

The dedication of leaders like Mike Rose, Lt Gen Rod Bishop and Vice Admiral Dean Lee stands out. Their efforts are not only helping individuals like me, but are also working to strengthen the military by pushing back against harmful practices, promoting readiness and ensuring that patriotic Americans have the opportunity to serve honorably. STARRS is unlike any other organization I've encountered; its mission, its people, and its commitment make a real difference."

"On behalf of my family, I wanted to offer our personal thanks for your support and wise counsel as to my son's issues these last for months. It is without question that your dedication to our family, and the great cause of making these institutions accountable, has not gone unnoticed by me or our family.

I am not sure saying saying thank you is enough to express our gratitude for all your help—but Thank You. May God continue to bless you and your family, and those that seek your help in the future.—From a parent of a cadet

"Not all wars are fought on a battlefield. Some wars are fought on American soil—to defend and protect our American military against the very entities and institutions that should be protecting and preserving our service members.

Our son has been fighting one of the most difficult battles of his life at the United States Air Force Academy for almost a year. We are beyond grateful that Mike Rose and STARRS not only joined the battle but also helped win the war. Mike Rose is a true warrior for what is right and just. He went above and beyond to protect the rights of our son and help him get his hard-earned degree.

The guidance and advocacy that Mike and STARRS provided truly made all the difference. Their battle against DEI and Woke policies continues, and we have joined the fight!"

MORE FEEDBACK:

"I want to send my sincerest appreciation to STARRS (and Gen Bishop) for the excellent work they've done, and for the progress we're making in restoring meritocracy to the military and to the service academies. My family has a lot of "skin in the game" (father, uncle, brother, and I are all academy grads), and even more so now, as my son is an academy applicant. We are so encouraged by the many great actions across DoD to eradicate DEI and CRT from ALL the services. THANK YOU. I am very grateful for your efforts."—From an Academy Grad

"Folks, Keep up the outstanding work you are doing to restore the rightful mission and vital development of our Armed Forces."—From a retired Army Colonel

"In a world where people are so self-consumed and absorbed, it is obvious that STARRS is comprised of many amazing, talented, diligent, honest, and highly decorated individuals that are not going to give up, too. I just wanted to let you know how much hope and comfort the organization has brought me during this challenging time. Keep up the strong work!"—From a former servicemember

"Thanks so much for your boots on the ground at USAFA working to take back our Academy. It's grads like you and others that are making a difference—thank you. Just like our President, a relentless, never-give-up attitude can hopefully allow us to turn our Academy around from the scourge of the progressive, socialist mindset. Praying for you and everyone at STARRS who are doing God's work."—From an Academy Grad

"MAKE SURE CADETS CAN ARTICULATE AND FEEL IN THEIR SOUL AMERICAN EXCEPTIONALISM"

—USAA BOARD OF VISITORS MEMBER CHARLIE KIRK, 7 AUGUST 2025

The importance of this institution goes back to one other thing I know this board wants to focus on is that when we're educating them, we need to educate them towards "being something", towards being a warrior, but for what?

It's one thing to strip away the DEI and Critical Race Theory, of which we're going to be continually, politely bothering you on with questions.

But also we want to make sure that the cadets over the course of four years can articulate and they can feel in their soul American Exceptionalism, what they're willing to die for. What is that Constitution that they're swearing an oath to?

It shouldn't just be 'here's American history'. We want them to be on fire because good leaders can articulate "The Why".

Of course, there's a self-selection, they're coming here for a reason, because they love the country. But we want them to understand at a deeper, more fundamental level, American Exceptionalism.

If I could submit a recommendation in the curriculum education department: what does success look like when they throw their cap up in the air after four years?

That they are an advocate for the Exceptionalism of this project, not just a tool for the military, but they are able to articulate it, that they're able to tell the people that they're going to be leading in those tough days: here's why we're fighting so hard, here's why we're sacrificing.

...THAT THEY'RE ABLE TO TELL
THE PEOPLE THAT THEY'RE GOING TO BE LEADING
IN THOSE TOUGH
DAYS: HERE'S
WHY WE'RE
FIGHTING SO HARD, HERE'S
WHY WE'RE SACRIFICING.

It's not enough just to say we want them to be good at programming AI and flying drones and being able to lead. But what are they leading towards?

Well, we want America to dominate this century and in order to dominate, we have to know what we are and who we are. It's imperative that these cadets know that we are the greatest nation ever, and those roots. Not any sort of question about that.

That's what makes this institution different. This is not Harvard. This is not Dartmouth, where they can spread anti-American ideas. If you don't want to defend the country, that's fine, you can go to University of Colorado Boulder. There's plenty of people that don't want to do that.

But Air Force cadets are here to understand the beauty of this country. I want to see even more of that. And I know that's there." ♦

IN CONGRESS

Unanimous Declaration of the Thirteen

When in the course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.
